Appraising Self is the Message of Days of Awe

Submitted by
RABBI A. ALTEIN
Ashkenazie Synagogue

The Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, one of the "Days of Awe" which usher in the new year (may it be a happy and blessed one for all of us) fills every Jewish heart with a sense of holiness.

Unfortunately, for various reasons, the inspiration generated by this momentous day (and by the preceding days of Rosh Hashanah and the Ten Days of Repentance) has not always been put to the best and fullest advantage. In some congregations, and in many individuals, the inspiration evaporates with the passing of the Days of Awe, without a discernible change or improvement in the personal day-to-day life of the individual Jew or Jewess. And where there is a lack of improvement on the individual level, there must inevitably be a lack of improvement on the social level.

One of the main reasons for this failure is that the spiritual awakening and inspiration of the Days of Awe are not directed towards the self, but towards matters relating to others. Not infrequently these auspicious days serve as an occasion for general pronouncements on world problems—"messages" that do not implicate anyone in particular, least of all anyone in the immediate environment. This approach "satisfies" everybody since it involves no one.

The concentration on, and preoccupation with, such lofty world problems and resolutions (resolutions which, in the majority of instances, are beyond the control of those making them) provide a convenient justification for diverting the necessary and vital attention from the self, from self-searching and the reappraisal of one's personal life. Yet, it is in precisely these areas that personal resolutions can be effective.

Let us hope that, with G-d's help, every Jew and Jewess, especially those who are spiritual leaders, will take full advantage of the sacred moments and the soul-stirring inspirations of the Days of Awe (the High Holydays)—not in the direction of general world or national problems—but in personal response to the urgent call of these days.

That call is the Divine command: "Make Me King over you!" We must accept the Sovereignty of G-d as our own King and Master. This calls for Teshuvah (Return), Tefilah (Service), and Tzedakah (Righteousness)—all of which should begin at home—in one's self; and then around one's self, in the community and the environment.

Australian Synagogue's Centenary

Sydney (JCNS) Services and functions are being organized during the next twelve months to mark the centenary of the Great Synagogue here. The chief minister is Rabbi Raymond Apple, former minister of the Hampstead and Bayswater Synagogues in London.

The celebrations will open next month with a civic service to be attended by Alderman Leo Port, the Lord Mayor, when the Great Synagogue will make a presentation to the city.

Leading Australians will attend a service in March, 1978 marking the centenary date and there will be a banquet in the Town Hall here and an exhibition of Australian Judaica.

There will also be an Academic Shabbat in March, when the service will be attended by leaders in many fields of learning; a Law Shabbat in February with the Chief Justice and leading lawyers attending the service and a similar service for the medical profession in July 1978.

In May there will be a service to celebrate Israel's 30th anniversary, together with an Israel exhibition.

Carter's Rosh Hashanah Message

Washington (JCNS) U.S. President Carter issued a New Year message to American Jewry.

The message said: "Rosalynn and I extend warmest greetings to our fellow Americans of the Jewish faith on the occasion of your High-Holy Days, in which symbolically, mankind passes in judgement before the heavenly throne.

"As you solemnly review and judge your own conduct in the past year, we are all reminded that we serve God most faithfully by showing concern for our friends and neighbours.

"In a world made small by modern technology, all peoples and nations have become closer together and the concern for others have become more important than ever. This is the well-spring of our nation's commitment to human rights, and it is why we are determined that all of America's words and deeds will honour that commitment.

Among the Rosh Hashanah prayers recited in the synagogue is one which looks towards a day when mankind will be joined in universal brotherhood. This is a prayer to which all of us add our heartfelt Amen as we wish each of you a happy and prosperous New Year."

Saudis May Get F-15s

Washington (JCNS) Despite strong Israeli opposition the American Defence Department is quietly urging the Carter Administration to sell 60 F-15 supersonic fighters to Saudi Arabia.

Following a strong debate within the Pentagon, the defence secretary, Dr. Harold Brown, recommended that the Administration undertake the sale of the F-15s, the most advanced high-speed fighter in the American air force.

Supporters of the deal argue that the sale would strengthen U.S. ties with Saudi Arabia, a major oil-producer, which is sure to have a key role in any Middle East negotiations. They also argue that Saudi Arabia needs the F-15s to replace her ageing fleet of British Lightning jets.

Strongly opposing the sale to Saudi Arabia, Israeli officials say that the possession of these highly advanced aircraft would give the Arabs an advantage over Israel, seriously disturbing the balance of power in the Middle East.

There is likely to be Congressional opposition to the Saudi deal on the grounds that it would violate President Carter's stated policy of limiting the sale of advanced weapons.

Jewish Art to be Photographed

London (JCNS) Over 60 museum curators, academics and private collectors from Europe and the U.S.A. gathered in Oxford recently for a conference on Jewish ceremonial art, sponsored by the Oxford Centre for Post-Graduate Hebrew Studies and the Tarbuth Foundation of New York.

The conference, believed to be the first of its kind, adopted a resolution requesting the Oxford Centre to initiate and co-ordinate efforts to establish an international archive of photographs of Jewish ceremonial objects.

Attended by delegates from as far apart as Yugoslavia and Los Angeles, the conference reflected the heightened interest in recent years in this visual aspect of the cultural heritage of the Jewish people. One of its main concerns was the fact that many of the objects which survived the Second World War on the continent from entire synagogues to small ritual objects—were either unknown, or Jewish communities were without the organization or resources to preserve them.
